The High Court of Impeachment—Mr. Evarts Concludes—Mr. Stanbery Begins His Argument—Synopsis of the Whole—Alta Vela Resolution in the House Laid on the Table.

[By Telegraph to Pittsburgh Gazette]

WASHINGTON, May 1, 1868.

SENATE.

Mr. EVARTS continued his argument. He commenced with an apology for having so long occupied the time and attention of the Senate. Saying he would claim their indulgence but a little while longer, he proceeded to consider the power of the President to fill vacancies under the acts of 1792, 1795 and 1796. He admitted the act of 1863 limited the choice for appointments of Secretaries ad interim in certain cases to the heads of other Departments, but he argued that under the act of 1793, which allowed him to choose from all the officers employed in the Department, the President had full warrant for the appointment of General Thomas, who was then Adjutant General. Referring to the action of Mr. Lincoln, in appointing an ad interim successor to Mr. Blair, Postmaster General, he said that the appointment was made under authority, only implied, of the acts of 1792 and 1795, which did not relate to the Postoffice Department at all. He asked why that conduct was not considered an impeachable offense? He then maintained it made no difference, either in the theory or practice of the Government, whether the temporary appointments were made during a session or a recess of the Senate, and instanced the four examples of Nelson in 1834, Scott in 1850, and Kelly and Holt in 1861, as ample warrant for his assertion.

Passing to the first article, he said he should consider at the outset the nature of the positions occupied by the members of the Cabinet. He would not again refer to the opinion of Mr. Boutwell, except to say he might name three more Senators, before him, who would share with others what he he had mentioned in the opprobrium upon such positions by the honorable Manager. He then read the address to Mr. Lincoln, signed by thirty-eight Senators, written in 1862, to urge his removal of Mr. Blair, so as to secure harmonious action. The opinions therein expressed by fifteen of the Senators now present on the subject of Cabinet relations he (Mr. Evarts) fully endorsed. He further quoted from speeches of Mr. Sherman and others, in the debate on the passage of the Tenure-of-Office bill, and in explanation of the report of the Committee of Conference, various expressions and arguments, which uncontradicted opinions and explanations he claimed were accepted as a proper interpretation of the bill as acted upon by the President. He held it would be monstrous to convict the President of crime by the same voices which gave utterance to or were concerned in these authorative declarations, that the bill did not reach or effect the relations of Mr. Stanton and the President. He also read from the report of Messrs. Schenck and Williams on the subject, which he claimed had bound the House to the same conclusion as the Senate. The argument of Mr. Boutwell, that the practice had always been to send in the name of the appointee before making the removal, he met by the consideration that removals are generally made, not because the incumbents are unfit, but because political favorites are to be put in. The instances of removal of cabinet officers are only two, for the simple reason that a polite hint is usually sufficient to induce resignation. He then referred to the instance of the removals of various officers during the session of the Senate, which had been put in evidence, and went on to argue the necessity for the existence of such power of instant removal, by some suppositious cases, where delay would lead to disastrous consequences. Alluding to the concession in Mr. Butler's speech, that if the President had properly notified the Senate of his intention, his action would not probably have been deemed ground for impeachment, Mr. Evarts said it appeared crime was not found in his fortitor in re, bnt in the absence suaviter in modo. He characterized the assertion of Mr. Boutwell, that it made no difference whether the law broken is constitutional or not, as a desperate attempt to escape from the force of the arguments of counsel for the President, which he would not repeat. He also quoted the admission of Mr. Boutwell, that the President would have been justified if he acted with honest intent of violation of law, which was ambiguous or equivocal, and claimed it was all they needed, after showing as they had that the act was fairly characterized by those very terms. Taking up the question of the character of the offence of violating the tenure-of-office law, he said there was no punishment provided in the law for attempts to remove, as for attempts to appoint, and as the articles now here charged the removal, there was no indictable or impeachable offence committed by the attempt to remove Stanton. He then maintained no Tenure-of-Office could be given by legislation for any longer time than that for which the officer is appointed, and applying this doctrine to the case of Stanton, he argued that he was not appointed but held his office by sufferance of the President, and therefore could not in any case be affected by the case in question. In reference to the argument, that if Stanton is not protected by the proviso, he is by the body of the section, he said we must speak of the office and not of the man, and if this office is covered by the section, we are led to the absurdity of admitting that its tenure can be made perpetual if successive Senators adhere to the same views. But if the law is susceptible of two constructions, he had the Managers' authority for claiming it would be abhorrent to the sense of justice to convict the President. He further argued that there was no attempt to violate the statute or right of Mr. Stanton to hold his office, but merely to withdraw the tenure which he held at the pleasure of the President.

Briefly reviewing the evidence, he ridiculed its insufficiency, as instanced in the testimony of Karsner, the solitary witness to prove the attempted coup de etat. Mr. Evarts then reminded the Senators that they must treat each article separately, without any reference to the character or force of the others, and always upon the presumption of entire innocence. They must discard political considerations, and judge of Mr. Johnson's separate acts as they would of Lincoln's and Grant's. He called attention to the former services of the President, to the circumstances of his early life, and subsequent stormy career, which have made him what he is, and referring to his political training, unflinching loyalty in times of trial, and unwavering devotion to the Constitution, which he made the guide and study of his life, appealed to the Senate in earnest terms to grant these considerations the utmost weight to which they were entitled. Illustrating the universal truth that unrighteous laws are always eventually righted or set aside, by reference to some of the consequences of the war and by descriptions of the march of the national armies, he passed to the consideration of the threatened dangers to the Constitution, and closed with an eloquent peroration, invoking that calm consideration and impartial justice which would be worthy of the successors of the great men who first dignified the senatorial halls.

The Senate took a recess.

ARGUMENT OF MR. STANBERY.

On re-assembling Mr. STANBERY rose, and after a few introductory remarks, in which he referred to the feeble state of his health, said he felt impelled by an irresistible impulse to lift his voice in this just cause, and proceeded with his argument. He said:

Mr. Chief Justice and Senators: It is the habit of the advocate to magnify his case. But this case best speaks for itself. For the first time in our political existence the three great Departments of our Government are brought upon the scene together. The House of Representatives as the accuser, the President of the United States as the accused, the Judiciary Department represented by its head in the person of the Chief Justice, and the Senate of the United States as the tribunal to hear the accusation and the defence and to render the final judgment. The Constitution has anticipated that so extreme a remedy as this might be necessary, even in the case of the highest officer of the Government. It was seen that it was a dangerous power to give one Department to be used against another Department. Yet it was anticipated that an emergency might arise in which nothing but such a power could be effectual to preserve the Republic. Happily for the eighty years of our political existence which have passed no such emergency has hitherto arisen. During that time we have witnessed the fiercest contests of party. Again and again the Executive and Legislative Departments have arisen in open and bitter antagonism. A favorite legislative policy has more than once been defeated by the obstinate and determined resistance of the President upon some of the gravest and most important issues that we have ever had or are ever likely to have. The Presidentia policy and the Legislative policy have stood in direct antagonism during all the time this fearful power was in the hands of the Legislative Department, and more than once a resort to it has been advised by extreme party men as a sure remedy for party purposes. But happily that evil hitherto has not come upon us. What new and unheard of conduct by a President has at last made a resort to this extreme remedy unavoidable? What Presidential acts have happened so flagrant that all just men of all parties are ready to say the time has come when the mischief has been committed, the evil is at work so enormous and pressing, that in the last year of his term of office it is not safe to await the coming action of the people? If such a case has happened, all honorable and just men of all parties will say amen. But if, on the contrary, it should appear that this fearful power has at last been degraded and perverted to the use of a party; if it appears that at last bad advice, often before given by the bad men of party, has found acceptance, this great tribunal of justice, now regarded with so much awe, will speedily come to be considered as a monstrous shame. If it should be found to be the willing instrument to carry out the purposes of its party, then there remains for it and every one of its members who participates in the great wrong, a day of awful retribution, sure to come, nor long to be delayed. But I will not anticipate nor speak further of the case itself until its true features are fully developed.

He claimed that the alleged high crimes and misdemeanors were all founded upon mere forms of Executive administrations, a violation of rules laid down by the Legislative department to regulate the Executive department, and proceeded to show what was the course of action of the Executive before these rules were adopted. The Tenure-of-Office act also introduced new rules. It did not take away the President's power, but fixed the mode.

Mr. Stanbery then proceeded to analyze the articles of impeachment, showing that four statutes of the United States were alleged to have been violated, three of which provided penalties for the violation and declared such offense a high misdemeanor and a high crime. The first eight articles on their face state that Stanton has not been removed, and the crimes and misdemeanors charged in respect to putting Mr. Stanton out and General Thomas in are things attempted and not things accomplished. It is the attempt with unlawful intent that the President is to be held responsible for. So it is a vital question whether the penalties prescribed by the statutes alleged to have been violated purport to punish, not only the commission of the acts, but the abortive attempt to commit them.

Mr. Stanbery proceeded at some length to show that Stanton's case did not come within the purview of the tenure-of office act, the proviso to which makes a distinction never made before in giving a new and better tenure to Cabinet officers of a President who were nominated by him, or appointed by him with the concurrence of the Senate. The theory is that having had one full opportunity of choice, he shall be bound by it; but as to Cabinet officers selected by a former President, who hold only by his acquiescence or sufferance, they are entitled to no favor and receive none. The construction given by the Managers leads to this inevitable absurdity, that the class entitled to favor are cut off at the end of a month, while those having a less meritorious title remain indefinitely in. What was intended for a benefit becomes a mischief, and the favored class are worse off than if no favor had been shown. From those entitled to protection it is taken away, to be given to those not entitled. When President Johnson was invested with office he found Stanton holding the office of Secretary of War. He had been appointed by Mr. Lincoln during his first term and was holding on to the second month of Mr. Lincoln's second term. Under the old appointment he was neither appointed by Lincoln or Johnson for that second term, and consequently never had any tenure of office under the Tenure-of-Office act for the current Presidential term. That act gives Cabinet officers no right to hold against the pleasure of the succeeding President one moment after the expiration of one month. At that time their right to hold ceases and their offices become vacant. The policy declared here is unmistakable, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the act, every President shall have the privilege of once selecting his Cabinet. As to the three members of Johnson's Cabinet, selected by himself, his power is exhausted. They are entitled to hold throughout his term in defiance of his wishes. The other four do not come within that clear policy of giving every President one opportunity at least to exercise his independent right of choice. Then, if as to them he has the right, how can he exercise it if, as in the case of Stanton, the Cabinet officer holds on after he has been requested to resign? What mode is left to the President to avail himself of his independent right, when such an officer refuses to resign? None other than the process of removal, for he cannot put the man of his choice in until he has put the other out. So the independent right of choice cannot, under such conditions, be exercised at all, without the corresponding right of removal, and the one necessarily implies the other. We have seen that the Tenure-of-Office fixed by the proviso for Cabinet officers applies only to those members of Johnson's Cabinet appointed by himself. It therefore does not apply to Mr. Stanton. If there is any other clause which applies to Stanton, it must be the first general clause, and if that does not apply to him, then his case does not come within the purview of the act at all, and must be ruled by pre-existing law, which make him subject at all times to the pleasure of the President and to the exercise of his independent power of removal. The Managers claim that this clause gives Stanton a new tenure. If this is so, it follows as inevitable that no succeeding President can remove him. He may defy Johnson's successor, as he now defies Johnson.

At this point Mr. Stanbery rested until to-morrow and the Court adjourned.

Following is a synopsis of the remainder of Mr. Stanbery's speech, which he will deliver to-day:

Mr. Stanbery argues that if it be held that Stanton does come within purview of the tenure-of-office act, no removal is charged in the articles or made out in the proof. The issuance of an order for removal is the gravamen of the charge. The tenor of every article is that Stanton never has been removed in law or fact, and that there has been at no time a vacancy. The proof shows that Stanton remains in possession, and that his official acts continue to be recognized. The act contains no provision forbidding an attempt to cause a removal or making it penal to issue an order for that purpose. But if the Senators should be of the opinion that the tenure-of-office act protected Mr. Stanton, and that the attempt to remove him was equivalent to a removal, he argued, 1st, that the President had the right to construe the law for himself, and if in the exercise of that right he committed an error of construction and acted under that error, he is not to be held responsible; 2d, that if he had so construed the law as to be of opinion that Stanton was intended to be protected by it against his power of removal, for an error of opinion that the law in that respect was contrary to the Constitution he is not to be held responsible, if he therein committed an error. Mr. Stanbery argues these points at length, quoting from Jefferson, Jackson and Van Buren to sustain his views.

He next argues that the Tenure-of-Office act has never been held by the Supreme Court to be constitutional. But even if it had been, what ground would there be for holding the President guilty of high misdemeanor in forming an opinion sanctioned by three of his predecessors? He cites from the Federalist that no legislative act, contrary to the Constitution, can be valid, and from Chancellor Kent, Chief Justice Marshall and others in support of his position that the President is vested with discretion.

Mr. Stanbery then proceeded to consider the conspiracy articles, arguing that not a word of proof had been adduced in their support. The Emory article has no substance or foundation. The tenth article is, he says, in violation of the right of free speech, valued by our people as a jewel beyond price, and expressly protected by the first article of the constitution. The eleventh article was a mere indifinite allegation, unsustained by proof, and was already sufficiently answered.

Mr. Stanbery then denied that any injury had been caused to any individual or officer of the Government, and that no public interest had suffered by the action of the President. He continued, maintaining that the order for the removal of Stanton was issued by the President in the exercise of an undoubted power, sanctioned by the Constitution and endorsed by every incumbent of the Presidential office. Then, he says, how can you punish him for following in good faith that oath he has been compelled to take to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States? Nothing is plainer than the duty of the Executive to resist the encroachment of the Legislative department. Whenever a President is deliberately of the opinion that an act of Congress calls upon him to exercise a power not given to him by the Constitution, he violates that Constitution if he follows it. Again, whenever he is called upon to execute a law which deprived him of a constitutional power, he violates the Constitution as well by executing it. A great trust is committed to his hands, sanctioned by a solemn oath, and he cannot surrender the one or violate the other.

Mr. Stanbery next adverted to the fact that, for the first time in the history of this country, laws were passed on the 2d of March, 1867, purporting to change the order of Executive action. Observe, however, he says, that neither in the primitive clauses of the second section of that Military appropriation act, nor in the sixth section of that Tenure-of-office act, is the President of the United States so much as mentioned. Whoever drew these acts shrunk from referring to the office by name. It is under the general description of "person or civil officer" that he is made liable to fine and imprisonment for failing to carry out the new provision of the law. But there is no question that it is the President, and the President alone, that is meant. The law was made for him, the punishment was for him. He is left no choice, no chance of appeal to the Courts. The language in effect is "this or the penitentiary; do our bidding, or take the consequences of impeachment." In the history of legislation nothing like this is anywhere to be found. The language of the Constitution, says Mr. Stanbery, is too plain to be misunderstood. The President is to be impeached only on conviction of treason, bribery or other high crimes or misdemeanors. Besides the two enumerated crimes, treason and bribery, there follows that other phrase "other high crimes and misdemeanors," and what sort of crimes and misdemeanors? Why, such as are assimilated to those enumerated. Look through all the correlative provisions of the Constitution on the subject, and examine the proceedings of the Convention, and see how studiously they rejected all impeachment for misdemeanor in office, and how steadily they adhered to the requisition that nothing but high crimes or misdemeanor should suffice. Was there ever a more abortive attempt to make a case of impeachment of the President under the Constitution? There never was any real life in it, long since its show of vitality vanished, and now it lies bereft of life, a shapeless mass, that gives no sign

Mr. Stanbery contends there was no violation of law in the ad interim appointment of General Thomas, and after a review of the testimony concludes his remarks with an eloquent appeal to the Senate for the President. His closing words are as follows:

But, if Senators, as I cannot believe, but as has been boldly said, with almost official sanction, your votes have been canvassed, and the doom of the President is sealed, then let that judgment not be pronounced in this Senate Chamber. Not here, where our Camillus, in the hour of our great peril, single-handed met and baffled the enemies of the Republic. Not here, where he stood faithful among the faithless. Not here, where he fought the good fight for the Union and Constitution. Not in the chamber, whose walls reecho with that clarion voice that in the days of our greatest danger carried hope and comfort to many a desponding heart, strong as an army with banners. No not here. Seek out, rather, the darkest and gloomeist chamber in the subterranean chambers of this capital, where the cheerful light of day never enters. There erect the altar and immolate the victim.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The SPEAKER said Mr. Brooks had given notice he would to-day renew his resolution relative to the Alta Vela affair. Therefore business would be transacted on the return of the members from the Senate this afternoon.

The members then proceeded to the Senate.

On returning from the Senate the House took up the resolution offered by Mr. Brooks, relative to the signing of the Alta Vela letter by the Managers of the Impeachment case. The debate thereon was lengthy and very personal.

Finally the House tabled Mr. Brooks resolution, by yeas 69, nays 25.

METHODISM.

General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Chicago.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

CHICAGO, May 1.—The fifteenth quarterly annual session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church opened at nine o'clock this morning, in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Morris presiding, assisted by his colleagues, Scott, Ames, Janes, Clark, Thompson and Kingsly. A half hour was spent in devotional exercises by the older members of the body, the venerable Peter Cartwright, of Illinois, offering the first prayer. The roll was called by the Rev Dr. Harris, the secretary of the last General Conference. Dr. Harris was then elected secretary. The rules of order of the last General Conference were adopted for the government of the present session. It was agreed to hold the session daily from nine o'clock to twelve A. M. The question of the admission of the representatives of the Mission Conference in the Southern States, two of whom are colored, was then taken up and discussed during the balance of the morning hour. Dr. Foster, of New York, proposed to refer the question to a committee, while Dr. Reid, of Cincinnati, urged the immediate admission of the representatives from the South. The motion to refer the matter to a committee finally prevailed by a large majority.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

In the Chicago General Conference of the M. E. Church, after the opening exercises this morning, and before the permanent organization, Rev. R. S. Foster, D. D., moved that the credentials of the representatives of Southern Mission Conferences be referred to a committee, who should consider and report on their eligibility to seats in the body.

Rev. Dr. Reid, of Cincinnati, offered as a substitute, a preamble and resolution setting forth the importance of the Southern work, eulogizing those actively engaged in it, and recommending the immediate admission of the representatives from the South.

An interesting and animated debate followed, which was participated in by Drs. Reid, Foster, Lanahan, Young and others, at the close of which the motion of Dr. Foster prevailed. There seems to be no doubt whatever that this Committee, which consists of Doctors Foster, Reid, E. O. Haven, Curry, Lanahan, Bruce and Hitchcock, will speedily report in favor of the admission of the Southern representatives, among whom are two colored ministers, the only hesitation being that the law of the church makes no specific provision for delegates from Mission Conferences.

Rev. G. W. Woodruff, Rev. R. Patterson and Rev. E. H. Waring, were elected Assistant Secretaries.

The Conference, by vote, ordered the appointment of standing committees, to consist of one from each delegation, on the following subjects: Episcopacy, Itinerancy, State of the Church, Book Concern, Lay Delegation, Church Extension, Revivals, Missions, Education, German Work, State of the Country, Sunday Schools and Tracts.

Special committees were ordered on the following subjects: American Bible Society, Pastoral Address, and Expenses of Delegates.

The afternoon session which was called for the purpose of completing the organization, was called to order by Bishop Scott. Rev. Dr. J. T. Peck conducted the opening religious exercises. A committee of seven was ordered on the American and Foreign Christian Union.

The Conference then proceeded to fill the standing committees, and these immediately organized by the appointment of chairmen and secretaries.

Judge Black's Letter to the President.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 1.—The Herald prints the letter from Judge Black to the President, withdrawing as the latter's counsel, owing to the President's determination to do nothing for the relief of the owners of Alta Vela. He says he never asked the President to decide on the matter until he had expressed the opinion that the title was legal and just. Mr. Black says: "Mr. Seward's little finger, it appears, is thicker than the loins of the law. He and the thieves whose interests he has guarded so faithfully, are welcome to the short-lived victory they have won. My retirement from your cause will not probably diminish the chances of its success.

Debate on the Irish Church Establishment in the British House of Commons—Mr. Gladstone's Resolutions Prevail by a Majority of Sixty-five.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

GREAT BRITAIN.

PARLIAMENT ON THE IRISH CHURCH.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

LONDON, May 1.—The debate in the Commons last night on Gladstone's resolutions on the Irish Church continued up to a late hour. Some prominent members spoke.

Lord Elcho opposed the resolution, and Mr. Gladstone closed the debate on the Liberal side with a powerful speech against the continuance of the Irish Church. He also defended himself from personal attacks made upon him for his course, denying he had any part or lot in the projects of either the Ritualists or Roman Catholics.

In the late debate on the Irish Church in the Commons last night, Mr. Walpole, in the course of his remarks in opposition to Mr. Gladstone's resolves, said these attacks on a clergy such as that of the Irish Church, who are noted for the purity of their doctrine, and for their elevated learning and christian zeal, was sure to lead to the most disastrous results.

Lord Elcho said the introduction of the resolves at the present time was unnecessary and unfortunate. The Roman Catholics of Ireland would never be satisfied with anything short of supremacy in ecclesiastical matters. He regards the issue presented to the House as an imperative one, for the Church establishment of England and of Scotland were menaced, as that of Ireland. These blows were struck at the whole system of the union of Church and State in the United Kingdom.

At rather a late hour, in the presence of a full house, Mr. Gladstone rose and was loudly cheered. He commenced by saying he could not complain of this result of the long debate. These eleven nights of discussion had fully demonstrated that the Irish church establishment never did and never could fulfil the end of its creation. It was not the church of the nation. It was not the church of the poor, nor was it a missionary church. It existed only for the purpose of sustaining political supremacy in a form most hateful to the people upon which it was imposed. This was unendurable. No minister dared say it should continue to exist. Now was the time to apply the remedy. The ministry had raised the question and broached a policy in regard to it upon which they subsequently failed to agree. He would say nothing concerning the disposal of the Church property in Ireland, for more and better information was needed on a question involving interest so expensive. Our duty now was to accord justice to Ireland.

Mr. Gladstone then, alluding to the personal attacks which had been made upon him, denied in the most explicit manner that he had any connection with or interest in the policy or plans of either the Ritualists or Roman Catholics. Discussing the arguments made against his propositions, he said two leading objections had been made to his plan for the disestablishment of the Irish Church. One was, it imperilled the existence of the Established Church of England. The other, that the time was inopportune. Fifteen years, he said, the people of Great Britain were indifferent, and then the introduction of a great reform would have been untimely. Now the people were aroused, and the opportunity presented itself for an early and sound settlement of the question. The strength of the Church of England lay in her own merits and in the voluntary zeal of her votaries far more than in her connection with the State. He expressed the belief that the Church of England would lose none of her strength, even if parted from the State. She had more to fear from her partisans than from her foes, and the reform of the Irish Established Church would strengthen the Church of England.

Mr. D'Israeli arose amid the excited cheers of the House to reply and close the debate. He deplored the act of injustice contemplated by these resolves. It was an act which involved wide confiscation of property and menaced the rights of every corporation and of every person in the United Kingdom. It inevitably must predispose the public mind for a similar attack upon the Church of England, and it undoubtedly was intended to have such influence. But in spite of the virulence of the press and the pressure brought to bear by the advocates of the change, he firmly believed the English people would never sanction the sacrifice of sacred things to party necessities, leading, as it was sure to lead, to results only to be described as revolutionary.

At half-past two o'clock this morning the House divided on the first of Mr. Gladstone's resolves. The count stood as follows: For the resolve 330, against 265—majority 65. The announcement of the result was received with loud and prolonged cheering from the Liberal benches.

Mr. D'Israeli then rose and amid the most profound silence said this decision so altered the relations of the Ministry and House of Commons that the Government needed time to consider what action it would take. He accordingly moved that the House adjourn until Monday. The motion was carried, and at 3 A. M. the House adjourned.

LONDON, May 1.—The Times says no one can deny the immense significance of the event. Since the motion to go into Committee, the tories have gained three seats in the Commons, yet the sixty majority has grown to be sixty-six. Dissolution is talked of merely to frighten members.

The Herald says the House of Commons by a vote, the importance of which cannot be denied, affirms that the Irish Church should be disestablished; but the House does not speak the voice of the country, as the late elections show.

The Daily News says it is satisfactory to find the Premier disclaims the design of advising the Queen to act against the vote of the House of Commons. His duty is not to dissolve Parliament, or resign, but to aid the progress of the resolves.

The Standard deprecates the vote of want of confidence as compelling dissolution, but fears the Liberals intend to pursue that course.

LONDON, May 1—Evening.—The belief has become general that after the passage of the reform bills for Ireland and Scotland, the D'Israeli ministry will dissolve Parliament, and appeal to the people on the Irish Church question. The Globe of this afternoon, in an editorial, confirms this opinion.

The Rebellion of General Negrete—Rumored Resignation of Senor Romero—The Foreign Debt—Indians Butchered—The American Consul Attacked by Banditti.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Advices from the City of Mexico are to the 20th of April. Congress had finally passed a condemnation on the concession to the English company for the building of the Vera Cruz and Mexico City Railway.

The rebellion of General Negrete was still unsuppressed. It was reported that he was raising troops in the North. Canales was reported as about to make common cause with Negrete. The settlement of the troubles in Sinola, by the national authorities, is not expected to be permanent. Several officers have been arrested, among whom was Colonel Meyers, late of the United States army.

Minister Romero was about to publish a pilfered letter of Gen. Banks, as also some private official documents connected with the State Department. It is rumored Romero's resignation was renewed.

A communication from Gen. J. G. Ortega, dated in prison at Monterey, and signed as President ad interim, has been published. He urges his claim to the latter, and complains of his treatment. The communication was at first discussed in secret, and afterwards in open session of Congress, after which it was referred to a special committee, who at once shelved the document.

Congress has passed an appropriation of thirty thousand dollars for the payment of the foreign debt, in the shape of English Convention bonds, and thirty thousand dollars for Spanish bonds. The export duty on silver is hereafter to be paid at the ports of shipment. Four conductas of specie annually to Tampico have been authorized.

Four hundred of the Yaqui Indians were surprised at night by the State troops of Sonora, and all butchered.

Senor Kalixto was kidnapped and held to ransom in the sum of $10,000.

Mr. Sanluier, American Consul at Vera Cruz, when on a mission to the interior recently, was attacked by banditti. He drew a revolver and asserted he was an American Consul, whereupon the highwaymen desisted and saw the Consul safe on his way.

The Pittsburgh Gazette.

THE ABSURDITY OF IT.

BY C. H. WEBB.

It is all very well, for the poets to tell,
By way of their songs adorning,
Of milkmaids who rouse, to manipulate cows,
At five o'clock in the morning.
And of mooney young mowers who bundle out doors—
The charm of their straw beds scorning—
Before break of day, to make love and hay,
At five o'clock in the morning!

But, between me and you, it is all untrue—
Believe not a word they utter:
To no milkmaid alive does the figure of five
Bring beaux—or even bring butter.
The poor sleepy cows, if told to arouse,
Would do so, perhaps, in a horn-ing;
But the sweet country girls, would they show their bright curls
At five o'clock in the morning?

It may not be wrong for a man in the song—
Or the moon—if anxious to settle,
To kneel in wet grass, and pop, but alas,
What if he popped down on a nettle?
For how could he see what was under his knee,
If, in spite of my friendly warning,
He went out of bed, and his house and his head.
At five o'clock in the morning?

It is all very well, such stories to tell,
But if I were a maid, all forlorn-ing,
And a lover should drop, in the clover, to pop,
At five o'clock in the morning;
If I liked him, you see, I'd say "Please call at three;"
If not, I'd turn on him with scorning;
"Don't come here, you flat, with conundrum like that,
At five o'clock in the morning!"

—On Thursday evening Fraul Janauscheck performed for the last time in this country. The play was Elizabeth and the theatre the Brooklyn Academy. It is to be hoped that the great tragedienne will be induced, by her great success, to repeat her professional visit to this country.

—Thomas Cady, while attempting to put a new set of halliards on a liberty pole in Bergen, N. J., lost his hold and fell one hundred feet to the ground, where he dashed his brains out. Great regret is felt that he had not succeeded in fastening on the halliards, as nobody will attempt it now.

—A lady in Illinois wants a husband, and advertises for him in a Decatur newspaper. She is easily pleased. All she wants is that he should be handsome, well off, temperate, anti-tobacco, and a regular church-goer. If she finds him, it will be a renewed evidence of the fact that advertising works miracles.

—The following slander is going around among the papers; it might apply pretty well to American editors, and, indeed, perhaps it is just, as it stands:

"In Germany, when a paper publishes anything witty, they kill the editor. Not a single editor has been killed there for two hundred years."

—The Philadelphia papers are loud in their reproof of a number of ultra fashionables who talked and laughed too loud while occupying a box at the Academy of Music. Some of the same party were last winter hissed by the audience for the same offence.

—McCoole and Coburn are going to Chicago to fight. It is perfectly refreshing to notice the indignation which some of the Chicago papers assume at this announcement, and how they say that the prize fighters will have to go to some other State, and yet between two and three columns were devoted to the last prize fight in the vicinity by each of the daily papers.

—Rev. W. Morley Punshon, the renowned Methodist orator of England, and said to be the most polished and powerful speaker of modern times, is coming to the Chicago Conference as a delegate from England. After his official duties are completed, it is understood that he will travel through various parts of the country and we understand that efforts are being made to have him lecture in this city.

—When young ladies retire from an evening party, en masse in an omnibus, they should be careful not to allow their gentleman escorts to be too boisterous in their merriment, or some extra officious policeman might arrest them and drive them off in a body to the station house. We have even heard of some such thing having actually occurred in Allegheny, and consider it an outrage such as could only be properly avenged by the cashiering of the rudely officious official.

—Powers is now employed upon a statue, to which he has not yet given a name. It might be called "The Last of the Race." A tall, beautiful Indian woman is represented as in the act of running, but with a weariness of body and limb which indicates that the end of her flight is near. Her head is turned to one side, as if listening to the sound of pursuit. The face expresses both fear and pain, not sharp and desperate, but dulled by the knowledge of an inevitable fate.—Bayard Taylor's Cor.

—There is perhaps in the world no amusement so generally abused as gossiping. Every one attacks it, but every one makes use of it, and like many other things it is worst abused by those who use it most. Without a little of it sprinkled in as seasoning, society of any kind would be keycold and disagreeable. He or she who indulges in gossip must, or ought to, know that like most other things it grains, and therefore should be wary; but he or she who says that none but geese would indulge the use of so abominable a weapon of the arch enemy generally in the end proves himself a gozzard. Gossiping, like smoking, drinking and other small vices, is very piquante and delightful if moderately indulged in, but dangerous if carried to excess.

—People who indulge in the use of chocolate probably have no idea of what a disgusting mess they are finding so delicious. We know young ladies who would be shocked at the idea of using chewing gum, which is really no worse than chocolate. In the preparation of this condiment, cocoa nibs, sugar, fat, flour, sago meal, starch, arrow root, honey and molasses are used; of course, this conglomeration does not retain the desired chocolate color, to obtain which venetian red, umber, and the deadly poisonous metalic salts, cinnabar and red lead are employed; after all this the fatty unctious taste of the original chocolate is lost, and must be obtained by mixing in tallow and hogs' lard. After all this it is boiled and poured into moulds, and when cold it is "a dainty dish to set before a queen" or any of the young ladies who so "love chocolate."

—It is the fashion to abuse chignons and therefore chignons will probably be abused until they disappear from sight, not because of the abuse, for that never has the slightest effect on fashions. We really cannot understand why these excrescences should be so assailed. They are unbecoming to most girls, but so are many other things; they are simply a covering for the upper portion of the back of the head, taking the place of the banished bonnet crowns. Nobody objected to hair jewelry. Why should they to hair head dressers? And as to deception, which very good people say is the worst feature of chignons, why there is none. Ignorant savages imagined that the first hat they ever saw grew on the wearer's head, and only equally ignorant people could imagine the same thing of chignons. They decieve no one, and if they please the girls they accomplish more than many of the men who abuse them do.

PITTSBURGH METAL MARKET.

FRIDAY, May 1, 1868.

The week's sales of pig iron was very limited, buyers having evidently made up their minds to take hold very sparingly and purchase only what was required to carry on their regular business. RIVER NEWS.

The river was swelling slowly yesterday. The Monongahela had six feet in the channel, and the Allegheny seven feet. The weather was very pleasant. The St. Charles left last evening for Cincinnati with a good trip.

The Parkersburg packet for this day is the Grey Eagle, Capt. Brennan, a favorite boat with passengers and shippers.

The splendid passenger steamer Glendale will positively take her departure for St. Louis and Missouri river on Saturday, and persons going that way would do well to bear this fact in mind. She has unsurpassed accommodations, and careful and attentive officers.

The fine packet Kate Robinson, Capt. R. Robinson, is announced for Cincinnati and Louisville. She will leave with dispatch.

The Wild Duck Barges, Capt. Anawalt, is also announced for St. Louis forthwith.

COAL DEPARTED.—The towboats Coal Hill and Lion left for Cincinnati with 12 barges, containing two hundred thousand bushels of coal.

The Leni Leoti left with all the freight she could manage.

The mail line of steamboats on the Monongahela are running regularly to all points on the river. The boats are all first-class, and the officers are proberbially courteous and obliging.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—The Nightingale and Leonidas will leave for the Ohio to-day, being detained by rain yesterday. It rained nearly all day, but to-day is bright and clear. The Belle Vernon, from Pittsburgh, arrived yesterday. The Silver Lake is announced to leave on Saturday for Benton.

The Missouri is rising at Omaha, with heavy rains. The river has begun rising here slowly.

Thursday's Cincinnati Gazette says: A Convention will be held in this city some time in May, composed of men from all points of the Ohio river, representing the coal, lumber, insurance, manufacturing and steamboat interests, the object being to consult together and settle upon some means to prevent the obstruction of the Ohio river by short span bridges.

The Alaska arrived at New Orleans on Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock, six days out from Cincinnati.

Wednesday's Louisville Courier says: The Indiana brought up the stables of Capt. Thomas Moore, comprising eleven horses, valued at $80,000. Among the horses are the celebrated Fanny Cheatham, Stonewall, Gen. Rousseau and Veto. They will remain at Woodlawn Course, a few days to recruit, when they will be taken to New York to attend the Saratoga races.

Mr. George Cory has returned from the wreck of the wrecking boat Northwest, sunk in the Arkansas river last winter. The attempt to raise the boat has been abandoned. Her machinery was all saved. The towboat Lake Erie droppped her tow of eleven barges and two boats of coal through the canal and passed down for Memphis.

The St. Louis Democrat says: The Mississippi Valley Transportation Company yesterday closed a contract for the transportation from this city to Liverpool, England, of 17,000 bushels bulk wheat. The rate is 12c per bushel to New Orleans, delivered on the vessel, and 12 pence thence to Liverpool. This is the adventure of Cole Bros., Mitchell, Miltenberger & Tansey, George P. Plant, Haenschen & Orthwein and H. A. Homeyer & Co. The Bee will take the wheat to New Orleans, and one of her barges will receive it from the elevator. The Transportation Company is advised there will be a vessel at New Orleans to receive the grain on arrival.

The case of F. C. Sharp and J. O. Broadhead vs. the Security Fire Insurance Company of New York, came up in Circuit Court No. 1, and judgment was rendered. The suit was brought to recover $5,000 upon a policy of insurance held by the plaintiffs who had an interest in the Magnolia, destroyed by fire. It will be remembered that many suits to recover for losses by this fire have already been decided, but some appeals have already been taken. Judgment was rendered in this action for $4,900.

The steamer Glasgow left Omaha April 20th, at 11 a. m. No boats in port. Met Columbia at Council Bluff: W. B. SECURITY AND COMFORT FOR THE TRAVELING COMMUNITY.

J. B. HARRIS' SAFETY FIRE JACKET,

Car Heater and Moderator,

For SMOKE AND HOT AIR FLUES, dispensing with the use of Stoves and Fires in or about the Passenger or Baggage Cars, with the attachment to graduate the heat to any temperature that may be desired without the possibility of firing the car or cars to which the Jacket may be attached.

Having obtained of the United States Letters Patent for a Safety Jacket which is warranted to resist the most intense heat that may be adplied to it in the position and purpose for which it is intended. It is a sure protection from accidents by fire, originating from defective flues, or where iron pipes are used as conductors for smoke or heat. It is appliplicable to all piping that may become overheated, and is warranted to give perfect satisfaction where wood or other combustible material may be placed in close proximity thereto. I am now ready to apply my invention to stores, dwellings, facteries, ships, steamboats, railroad cars, &c., wherever pipes as conductors are made dangerous by being overheated and security desised. I will sell, on application, rights to manufacture or to use the above invention; also, territorial rights, to such as may wish to engage in selling privileges, either by State or county.

Gold closed in New York yesterday at 139⅝.

The latest report from Georgia runs that the Constitution and the Republican State ticket have each 10,000 majority, but that the Legislature has a majority of Democrats, many of whom are ex-rebels, and cannot take the oath.

◆

Arkansas has ratified the XIVth Amendatory Article of the Constitution. Louisiana and the two Carolinas will very speedily do the same, thus affording the requisite three-fourths number of the several States legalizing its adoption as an organic law of the Union.

◆

Mr. Evarts continued his very able political speech before the Senate yesterday. It is generally regarded, in Republican circles at Washington, as made in part for the special advancement and glory of the orator himself, and in part under the inspirations of Secretary Seward.

◆

There is no longer a possibliity of the submission of the impeachment to the judgment of the Senate this week. Mr. Evarts has occupied its attention for the best part of three days. Some four hours are to be consumed in the reading of Mr. Stanbery's argument, and it is probable that Mr. Bingham will not address the Senate at all until Monday, and will then consume two days more. Let us all possess our souls in patience!

◆

Washington gossip is everything by turns and nothing long. For three days past the press specials have dilated with equal rapture upon the magnificence of Evarts' speech, the shakiness of Republican Senators, and the calm assurance with which the President smilingly awaited the inevitable acquittal. Last evening, the wind shifted, and every Republican Senator, except Grimes, will vote for conviction, and even Reverdy Johnson will "go back" upon his namesake.

◆

The New York Tribune very pertinently remarks, as to the gratuitous rumor from Washington, that Senator Wilson and Speaker Colfax desire to prevent the accession of Mr. Wade to the Presidency until after the Chicago Convention, that the rumor is absurd on its face. He is sure to be President until next March, and his competitors at Chicago would find him infinitely less formidable a rival with his patronage already disposed of than with the numerous expectants not yet disappointed.

◆

It is stated by the Cincinnati Chronicle that the business men of that city are divided in opinion upon the question of wide or narrow bridge-spans, and that the division enured to the advantage of the narrow-span advocates, who regard the latest action of the Ohio Legislature as settling the question of width at three hundred feet. We regard this result as most unfortunate for the growing interests of Cincinnati. Among river men there is a general and just belief that it will be seriously detrimental to the safety of navigation. A well organized, active and energetic combination has thus enabled a special interest to triumph at the expense of the general welfare. It is in this way that the great, clumsy, awkward, slow-footed public permits itself again and again to be plundered of its rights by the wide-awake aggressions of private enterprise.

DEMOCRATIC EMBARRASSMENTS.

The opposition to the Republican party will find the question of a platform as full of embarrassments at New York as the selection of a Presidential nominee. Nor are the two difficulties entirely independent of each other. In fact the first well-marked line to be drawn by the Convention, whether upon candidates or principles, will be practically a settlement upon both points:

The previous experience of the party has with a single exception shown that principles are of no consequence, and the personal availability of men has been the decisive consideration. The Convention of 1868 introduces the Democracy to a test upon principles entirely without precedent in its history, except in 1860. In that year, when brought, by the irresistible power of events, squarely face to face up to a crucial decision, upon the merits of a question which could neither be ignored in silence nor eluded by the customary double-tongued adroitness of phraseology which has given to the party so many of its triumphs, the test was fatal, a schism resulted, and, while one fragment of the party avowed their objectionable dogma with a bold sincerity which was in due time illustrated upon many a sanguinary battle-field, the other and larger wing of the Democracy attempted, by the old game of evasion and duplicity, to recover the lost confidence of the people. The crisis proved too dangerous and its peril reached too near the life of the Republic for a mere trick of politics to win, and so the Democratic party went down to ruin. Not a few of its honored and most distinguished leaders, and many thousands of its liberty-loving and patriotic voters, arrayed themselves on the side of the Union and its uncompromising defenders, and became not only the faithful and trusted allies of the Republican organization, but, from that day to this, constitute an honored and influential portion of the party of Popular Rights.

In 1864, when the remnants of the old Democracy met at Chicago, Copperheadism, pure and simple, ruled its deliberations, and the party again went to the people upon a thinly veiled admission of its disloyalty to the Union. Had the party then no reliance except upon such remnants of its old organizations as had withstood the temptations of armed secession on the one hand and the sacred claims of imperilled liberty on the other, a mere handful only of followers would have rallied about its dishonored flag, but circumstances favored it. Deserters, skedaddlers, draft-sneaks, bounty-jumpers, exposed and disgraced contractors, incapable and condemned military aspirants, with thousands of milk-blooded citizens who had a cowardly fear of a service to which their country might call them, or who grudged contribution from their means to the necessities of the Treasury—all that class who opposed giving a man or dollar to their country, and each one of them quaking with a fear that the man might be himself or the dollar his own—these were the new recruits whom the Democracy were so lucky as to drum up to their support, and in such numbers as to give them once more a tolerable show as a minority at the polls.

Such is substantially the character of the Democracy of 1868. A very few additions have been made to them from those weak brethren in whose breasts country had obtained a temporary sway over party, but whose partizan proclivities returned when the dead-point of danger had been passed. But the number of these "war Democrats," who, fainting by the way-side, have straggled out of the ranks of the Union, to be picked up by the Democratic ambulances, keeping step hereafter to the music of Dixie, is, let us be thankful, very small and their influence extends no further than their votes. It is the party composed of such elements, animated by such sentiments, and led by the same old Copperhead leaders, which calls itself still the Democracy and meets at New York in a few weeks in National Convention.

One leading question will decide the choice of candidates, as it will control the authoritative utterances of the platform. It will govern the organization of the body in the election of its presiding officer, and of all its committees. A prominent western candidate has forced this question upon the party, and he will stand or fall in its official councils upon the issue he has made. He will encounter a determined and bitter opposition. It is a question of the pocket quite as much as of principle, with the Democratic leaders, and questions of the pocket are as potential with these gentlemen as with the most of men. Mr. Pendleton's anti-war record especially commends him to the influential Copperheads, to the mass of the party, in fact, excepting the small percentage in whose ears the old and sweet music of the Union fife and drum still echoes, but his financial theory, if endorsed by a nomination, and successful before the people, is, to many of the magnates of the Democracy, the next thing to financial ruin. They will, if they can, defeat his aspirations by any means, fair or foul, and the prospect just now seems favorable to the success of their combinations against him. His own friends, on the other hand, have committed themselves to his propositions beyond the possibilty of withdrawal. A Democratic election-campaign this year in the West, without "Pendleton and greenbacks" would be like the play of Hamlet, omitting the Prince from the cast. The emasculated programme would leave them absolutely nothing to say.

This is the question which causes our Democratic brethren most serious concern. It is critical to this degree that it involves either the peril of a "bolt" or such a discouragement of a large minority of the party as to put succcess in November completely beyond possibility. This question must be met at New York; it cannot be evaded, and the party is fully aware of the dangers involved. A single consideration may have decisive weight in its solution. With "Pendleton and greenbacks," the party may reasonably make pretensions to some sort of platform. Without that issue, they have no platform at all. The question of taxation is being rapidly adjusted to meet the views of the people and the needs of the Government. Reconstruction, half completed, will, in sixty days more, be an absolute and irreversible finality. Neither upon a protective tariff nor upon universal suffrage is the Chicago Convention likely to give them any show. They have nothing but Pendleton and rag-money to fall back upon, and that, such as it is, they will regard as better than nothing, and so, for the hope of making a respectable fight, the Ohio politician and his theories will stand a chance to be accepted as a matter of necessity.

Massachusetts has again repudiated Female Suffrage. The Judiciary Committee of the Massachusetts House, which for some days had been hearing arguments for and against female suffrage, on Tuesday reported unanimously against it, and both Houses agreed to the report. This is the third time that the Massachusetts Legislature has rejected female suffrage.

NEW TARIFF PROPOSITIONS.

The Chicago Tribune publishes statements purporting to be the substance of the as yet incomplete report of the Sub-Committee of the Ways and Means, on the revision of the tariff. Its correspondent at Washington asserts that the report is guarded in the closest secresy from the public eye but that copies of the sheets as revised are forwarded to the Iron and Steel Association and the Manufacturer's Associations for information and suggestions. That journal makes a determined opposition to any tariff revision, in the interest of increased protection to the branches of industry represented by the Associations above mentioned, and it may have been misled, in its statement on this point, by erroneous information. Its correspondent says:

The principle pervading the bill throughout is this:

1. The duties on foreign articles coming in competition with those of home manufacture are increased above existing rates from 50 to 100 per cent.
2. The duties on raw materials produced at home and entering in manufactures remain unchanged, or are reduced from 25 to 50 per cent.
3. The duties on foreign articles entering into manufactures are either reduced or the articles themselves transferred to the free list.

We will specify a few particulars:

It is further stated that the duty on ingot-copper is increased five cents per pound, or 100 per cent advance, and on the manufactured products of copper from 35 to 45 and even 55 per cent. Pig-lead remains unchanged, but the duties on manufactured lead are advanced from 35 to 40 per cent; on white-lead, moist or ground, from 3 cents to 5 cents; on litharge from 3 to 4 cents and on all pigments from 3 to 5 cents; on cotton, raw, a reduction of 33 per cent, but fine cotton cloths advanced from 5 and 5½ to 7 and 7½ cents; yarns coarser than No. 50 from 4 cents per skein and 30 per cent, to 20 cents and 30 per cent. Warps, finer than No. 70, from 40 per cent to 40 cents and 30 per cent. Hosiery is advanced from 35 per cent to 10 cents per pound and 40 per cent.

The writer proceeds:

On potatoes the duties are reduced from 25 to 15 per bushel; on uncleaned rice from 2 cents to 1½ per pound; advancing the duty on wheat from 20 to 40 cents a bushel, and maintaining the duty 10 cents on Indian corn. On hubs, posts, wagon blocks, pickets, lath, &c., the tariff is reduced from 20 to 10 per cent; on shingles from 35 per cent to 50 cents per 1,000; barrels from 35 per cent to 30 per cent; oak and hemlock bark, logs, unmanufactured timber, railroad ties, ship-timber and firewood, masts and spars, which bear twenty per cent duty under the present tariff are transferred to the free list.

To benefit the manufacturers still further, almost every article of foreign growth which is employed by them is transferred to the free list—such as berries and nuts used in dying, bleaching powders, bolting cloths, gutta percha, india rubber, jute, potash and ornamental woods.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The list of Church Courts to assemble soon, which we gave recently, being incomplete, we insert a fuller account for the benefit of those interested. The General Assembly of the Old School Presbyterian Church will meet at Albany, New York, Ma, 21st. The New School Assembly convenes on the same day at Harrisburg, Penna. The Southern General Presbyterian Assembly will hold its annual session at Baltimore, same day. On the 26th of May the United Presbyterian General Assembly meets at Argyle, New York. The General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, meets at Lincoln, Illinois, May 21st. The General Synod of the Reformed Church, holds tts session at Hudson, New York, Jnne 3d. The General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, convenes in Pittsburgh, May 20th. The time and place of meeting of the Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian (Old School) Church we are unable to give. The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church commenced its Quadrenial session in Chicago, yesterday, and will continue at least four weeks. The General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church meets at Harrisburg during this month. The General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will hold its Triennial session in the Fall, and also the General Synod of the German Reformed Church. We hope to make such arrangements as will enable us to give the most important transactions of these Ecclesiastical bodies.

In 1840 there were in Pennsylvania one hundred and five clergyman and one hundred and ten parishes of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The last twelve years have added more than sixty parishes, and sixty-five clergyman, and the number of communicants is more than double what it was in 1840.

The closing exercises of the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny city, took place some days since. The total number in attendance during the term, was seventy-three. The examinations embraced two days. The Address before the Society of Inquiry, was delivered by Rev. David Hall, of Mansfield, Ohio, and the address to the Senior class, by Rev. George Hill, of Blairsville, Pennsylvania. The closing exercises at the First Presbyterian Church, Allegheny City, was interesing—Rev. David Elliott, D. D., LL. D. presiding. After prayer by Rev. Jonathan Edwards D. D., President of Washington and Canonsburgh College, the members of the Graduating class, numbering sixteen, delivered addresses, at the close of which Dr. Elliott presented them with diplomas, and a handsome Bible was furnished to each member with an address by the Rev. M. W. Jacobus, D. D., LL. D. Thus ended the term of this excellent institution, and one too, that will long be remembered by many. Next session of the Seminary will open September 14.

The Philadelphian Presbytery, in view of indeciences of the spectacles now so common in the theatres and opera houses, unprecedented in our country, and hardly equalled in any other, and which are making fearful inroads upon female delicacy, youthful purity, and public morality, call upon the ministry, and our Legislature, to use means to check the indecencies and immoralities of stage exhibitions.

Rev. James A. Reed, a graduate of the Old School Presbyterian Seminary across the river, is supplying the pulpit of Rev. Dr. Gurley, on New York avenue, Washington city, in the absence of the Doctor in California. Mr. Reed's style of preaching is represented as being forcible and his gesture pleasing.

A National Camp Meeting is to be held this year commencing, Tuesday, July 17th, and closing Friday week. The first of its kind, not restricted to Conference bounds, or district supervision as usually is the case, was held last year by the Methodists at Vineland, N. J., and was quite a successful and useful meeting. The committee appointed at the Vineland camp meeting to fix the time and place of the meeting this year, have not fully decided upon the location. Perhaps Lancaster, Pennsylvania, may be selected.

The Advance, of Chicago, a Congregational paper, edited with signal ability, favors the classifying of the members in its churches, something like the class arrangement in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and it thinks they will never be thoroughly organized till they adopt some such plan. The Advance also advises the use of local preachers to do certain kinds of missionary work, and co-operate with the pastor in various ways.

It is surprising the expansion of the German mission work of the M. E. Church since 1835, when Rev. Dr. Nast, the distinguished Biblical author, stood alone of this German element in that Church. In 1867, statistics show 32,072 members, 346 traveling ministers, 324 local preachers, 447 churches, 177 parsonages, 2 orphan asylums, 2 colleges, and one imigrant home. This property valued in the aggregate will amount to $1,656,386. The same year the church collections reached $65,165,66.

Trinity Corporation, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, New York City, contemplates erecting a Cathedral near Central Park.

The First (German) Reformed Church, Reading, Penna., at the Easter communion, had an accession of ninety-nine persons, by confirmation and certificate.

Recent information represents that the Baptists of Chicago are vigorously at work in promoting the erection and endowing of a Theological Seminary at Chicago. At the First Baptist Church, Sunday week, ten thousand dollars was subscribed toward the enterprise.

A Roman Catholic revival, or mission, says the Independent, has occurred in Norwich, Conn. The Church was thronged for weeks, the confessional was crowded day and evening, and the results, according to representation, were "Three thousand five hundred conversions, hundreds of strayed sheep were brought back to the fold, the establishment of the confraternities of the Holy Rosary and of the Angelic Warfare, and many other heavenly graces."

The American Missionary Association is doing incalculable good in the South. It supported last year, in connection with other auxilliary societies that labor with it, four hundred and seventy-five preachers and teachers. Of these but thirty were ordained clergymen.

The approaching Annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church for the Diocese of Pennsylvania, which meets at Philadelphia on the 12th, will take action in regard to the division of the Diocese. The churches in the interior counties it is believed are almost unanimous in favor of such a division as will throw the city of Philadelphia and counties of Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Deleware into one Diocese, and leave the remaining counties west to form the New or Middle Diocese.

The German Lutheran Conference of the Missouri Synod, met in Philadelphia last week. It was resolved to place a missionary in New York to labor among the Germans in that city and vicinity, and also to erect a Lutheran High School in Baltimore, for general education. The best mode of sustaining Theological Institutes in St. Louis and Fort Wayne, and School Teachers' Seminary, in Addison, Illinois, was discussed.

Quite a commotion exists among the church choirs in Rochester, N. Y., from the fact of high bidding by churches for leading singers. The Union of that city says that one Presbyterian church has offered a lady who sings in an Episcopal choir the sum of eight hundred dollars per annum to change her position. In another Episcopal church the choir is being reconstructed on a basis of expending some twelve hundred dollars per year for music. The result is there is an uneasiness among the choirs in the churches. It further says the church that has the most popular choir draws the largest miscellaneous audiences.

There is a religious organisation in New England, called the "Six Principle Baptists." They find their sect on Hebrews VI: 1, 2, where their six principles are enumerated, viz: Repentance, Faith. Baptism, Laying on of Hands, Resurection and Eternal Judgment. They have held their one hundred and ninety-seventh Annual Convention lately, but they have not progressed, or have grudually dwindled away, being swallowed up by the regular Baptists.

The Fashions.—The new Paris style of wearing ladies' hair is called the "out of water" head dress. It is simply a whole head of hair brushed back over the ears without the slightest ornament. In England the fashion report is that black dress coats are going out, and that the old style blue coats, with brass buttons, are coming in.

The minuteness of the new style of bonnets has enabled economical milliners in Paris to announce bonnets for three cents each, made of thin, pliable strips of wood, woven like a net, and with the interstices filled with very narrow ribbon. Of course these three cent bonnets may be "trimmed" up to the highest possible price.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

THE COURTS.

United States District Court—Judge McCandless.

In the bankruptcy branch Jas. P. Tanner, against whom a rule was granted, on application of W. E. Putnam & Co., of Boston, to show cause why he should not be declared a bankrupt, filed an answer through his counsel. The respondent denies that he has committed the acts of bankruptcy as set forth by the petitioning creditors, avers that he should not be declared a bankrupt for any cause in said petition, and demands that the charge may be submitted to a jury. The case will be tried at the ensuing session of the Court.

Petitions for final discharge were filed by Charles K. Thompson, of Charleston, Tioga county, and Samuel L. Bettle, of Wilkesbarre, Luzerne county. The usual orders were made.

The Weed Family Sewing Machine

Has obtained a reputation in this country never before obtained by any sewing machine in so short a time. In comparison with other machines, it has successfully bore the test of thorough competitive trial, and is now acknowledged to be of standard excellence. It is very simple in construction, does not easily get out of order. It runs easier than any other shuttle machine; the tension is of striking merit, the machine can be easily thoroughly oiled and cleaned without endangering the dress; and operates with marvelous ease, precision and silence. For efficiency, simplicity, durability, and ease of management the Weed Sewing Machine is not equaled by any other.—N. Y. Independent.

He made information before Alderman Taylor, charging Morgan with larceny. He was arrested and held for a hearing.

False Pretence.—M. C. Hardwick made information before Alderman Irwin, charging Adam Shaffer, of Lawrenceville, with obtaining goods under false pretence. The prosecutor is a grocer in Lawrenceville, and alleges that the accused obtained groceries to the amount of $15 by reporting that he owned property. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

BEWARE

Of that remorseless and insidious destroyer of the human race.

CONSUMPTION.

Check and conquer its advances, lest you fall the victim. When attacked with any of its preliminary symptoms, no matter how slight, be on your guard and promptly use the remedy ere too late.

DR. SARGENT'S COUGH SYRUP

Is an old, well tried, certain and standard remedy for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, Difficulty of Breathing, Pain or Oppression in the Chest or Lungs, and all Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs. Its sure and certain efficacy has been fully tested and endorsed for many years by numbers of well-known citizens in our midst, and their certificates are on record. Have you a cough which has gradually increased from a slight one to one of permanent standing? Lose no time, but procure a bottle of DR. SARGENT'S COUGH SYRUP, which will surely relieve you of the dangerous premonitory symptoms and effect a permanent cure. Do you spend miserable days and long sleepless nights of torture and pain from attacks of Asthma or Difficulty of Breathing? Dr. SARGENT'S Cough Syrup will act promptly, relieve you, and gradually restore you to your freedom of pain, and sound, pleasant sleep. Are your lungs sore and irritated, indicating inflammation? This is one of the most dangerous symptoms, and should be promptly removed. Dr. SARGENT'S Cough Syrup will heal the soreness, allay the inflammation, and restore the lungs to their prestine health and vigor. This Cough Syrup is pleasant and agreeable to take, while powerful and sure in its action. For sale by all Druggists in the country.

FALLACIES OF THE FACULTY.

The stomach is the ruling organ of the system. If the digestion is imperfect, every member, every gland, every muscle, every nerve and fibre is more or less out of order. All the fluids are depraved. The brain is clouded. The spirits are depressed. All dyspeptics know his to be the truth. It is not, however, half the truth. Columns would be required to enumerate the pains and penalties of dyspepsia, nor could any pen do them justice. Tens of thousands feel them; no man can describe them.

Can they be prevented? Can they be relieved? Can they be banished at once and forever? Unquestionably they can. No dyspeptic has ever taken HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS in vain. Believe no one who says the complaint is incurable. This great vegetable stomachic will eradicate it—is eradicating it in thousands of cases over which medical practitioners have shaken their heads ominously, saying, "Nothing can be done."

The faculty has its fallacies. One of them is that indigestion is the most difficult of all the ordinary ailments of mankind to combat and subdue. This is a mistake. Nothing can be easier than to conquer it if the true specific be administered. This vegetable combination which has become famous throughout the civilized world as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is an antidote to the disease which has never been known to fail, and fortunately it is everywhere procurable. If you wish to fool with the dyspepsia, try the pharmacopoeia prescriptions. If you want to root it out and prevent its occurrence take the Bitters daily. There is no discount on the testimony in its favor. If there is a man or woman who has ever tried it for indigestion without being benefitted, the fact has not transpired. Universal, uncontradicted praise avouches its wonderful tonic virtues.

ANOTHER CURE OF DEAFNESS.

I lost my hearing during the last year. Part of the time I was totally deaf. In April of this year I was induced, from an advertisement, to make application to Dr. Keyser, 120 Penn street, Pittsburgh. After having tried various medicines from doctors, without any benefit, I have been under Dr. Keyser's treatment now for nearly two months, and am entirely restored to my hearing, so that I can hear a pin drop.

ANOTHER CURE.

A man called to-day at Dr. Keyser's office to inform him of a great cure made by his Lung Cure, or Pulmonary Restorative. [illegible] these cures are made with the Doctor's preparations, he desires it to be distinctly understood that most of his great cures are made in accordance with the established laws that govern the science of medicine, in which he has been engaged for the past twenty-five years. Last week he was also in receipt of a letter from a clergyman in the State of Ohio, detailing another most wonderful cure.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
FRIDAY, May 1, 1868.

The uncertainty of the President's conviction keeps up political agitation and prevents a speedy decline in the gold premium. European capitalists look upon this matter from a different stand point, and consider the effects of a conviction of our chief magistrade as a more serious matter. Although the amount of interest and dividends on securities held abroad is very large, the investment orders are more limited than was expected. United States bonds are still quoted low in Europe, and do not respond to the advance here. It is reasoned, and perhaps correctly, that the conviction of the President is as dangerous to the establishment of quiet and order in the now politically agitated districts of the United States, as an acquittal. In either case the two contending parties for power would keep the country agitated and keep business enterprises back. It was well of the Treasury to anticipate the payment of May interest and to sell part of its surplus gold pending the President's trial and keep down the premium to steady the market. The beginning of next week will bring gold enough into the market to make it a drug, and rates are likely to yield.

The Government bond market was very firm, and had advanced on last night's quotations, but the advance was not sustained and prices declined from ¼ to ⅜ per cent., mainly on account of the weakness and dullness of the European markets for bonds.

Stocks are all higher; the Western shares have advanced from 2 to 3 per cent., and even New York Central and Erie have nearly touched the highest quotations obtained a few days ago. Money is very plenty in the seaboard cities, but at home there is still a scarcity of funds.

Improvements in cleanliness of our city and surroundings, and general improvements, would have much to do with the prosperity of our citizens. It would keep rich and retired merchants with their capital here and attract others, and thus furnish cheap capital for our manufactures. It is a noteworthy fact that Pittsburgh is a much dearer market to borrow money than Chicago, St. Louis or Cincinnati.

Business is improving but slowly; within the next week a large amount of money be distributed for dividends, which will improve the monetary condition materially.

Closing quotations as received by Ph. R. Mertz, were as follows:

Gold, 139¾; 1881 bonds, 113⅛; 1862 5-20s, 108⅛; 1864 do, 106¾; 1865 do, 106⅞; Consols, 108⅞; 10-40s, 103⅛; 7-30s, 107½.

Railroads—Cleveland & Pittsburgh, 83; Fort Wayne, 104¼; North Western, common 64⅞; North Western—preferred, 76½; New York Central, 129¾; Erie, 71⅜; Old Southern, 90¾; Ohio & Mississippi, 31¼; Merchants Union Express, 31⅞; Western Union Telegraph, 37⅛. Mining Shares—Corydon, 30; Quartz Hill, 1,10; Quicksilver, 27¼.

IRON AND NAILS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
FRIDAY. May 1, 1868.

During the past week the demand for bar iron has been very moderate, but prices are unchanged, and at card rates manufacturers have (taking into consideration the cost of production) no margin to make concessions on. The demand for nails continues large and prices are fully maintained. For sheet iron there is considerable inquiry from the West, and prices are firm.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
FRIDAY, May 1, 1868.

In our general markets there was no new feature, to-day, worthy of special remark. The current of trade moves only moderately active for the season, and, as yet the volume of transactions are considerably behind the usual volume of the trade at this period of the year. The orders received are numerous, but generally small yet the frequency foots up to a fair aggregate in amount. Flour continues very active, as does also Bacon. Butter and Eggs are lower. Groceries are moderately active. We quote the current wholesale rates as follows:

GRAIN—Prime Yellow Shelled Corn in elevator readily commands $1,08 per bushel, and on the wharf, $1,05 per bushel. In depot Oats sold at 80 to 82c. Rye is in demand at $1,95 to $2 per bushel, and scarce. Barley is in light receipt and selling readily at $2,50. There is no Wheat in market for sale, and millers have to purchase such supplies as will keep their mills in operation in the western markets. We quote nominally White Wheat at $2,70 to $2,75; Red Winter, $2,65 to $2,70, and No. 1 Spring $2,40 per bushel.

FLOUR—The market continues firm and steady, with large sales reported to-day. There is no quotable change in prices, but dealers here are looking for a still further advance, as they are working on little or no margins, compared with western rates. The following quotations of well-known brands will give an idea of prices to buyers: Crossetts's XXXX, $12,00; Dayton Snow Flake, (White Winter) $13; White River, (Red Winter) $12 to $12,25; Jenkin's Lilly Mills, $12 to $12,25, and medium brands, $10 to $11,25 per barrel. Rye Flour commands $9,50 to $9,75 per barrel.

PROVISIONS—The market is buoyant and still advancing. We quote Sugar Cured Hams, 19¾ to 20c; do Canvassed, 20¾ to 21c; Shoulders, 14¼ to 14½c; Ribbed Sides, 17c; Clear Sides, 19c; choice Dried Beef, 24c, and Lard, 19½c per pound. Mess Pork, $28,50 per bbl.

LARD OIL—There is a large demand for Extra No. 1 at $1,50, and $1,25 per gallon for No. 2.

CHEESE—Choice Cheese commands fair prices, with a good demand at 18c for Goshen; Factory at 17c; and W. R. at 14c to 15c.

ASHES—Sales of Pearls from store at 11c, and 5 tons Soda Ash at 4½c per pound.

LEAD—We quote pig lead selling at 10¼ per pound.

WHITE LIME—Sold at $1,75 per bbl.

A Duel With Rifles.

[From the Nashville Press, April 27.]

From Overton county comes to us a strange story, which we suppose has few parallels in the annals of difficulties settled after the code. The affair which we are about to relate happened two weeks ago, and the details were rehearsed to us on Saturday by an old miner, who has been prospecting in East Tennessee for a company of the North, and who, on his way to this city, passed through Fentress and Overton counties, to reach Gainsboro, on the Cumberland.

Among the bold, savage mountains of Fentress, and the lower or southern portion of Overton counties, dwell a race of hardy men, tar burners and wood choppers, who, separated, as it were, widely from the outer world by the absence of railroads and telegraphs, develop among themselves strange customs and stranger ways of thought.

Where the bold spurs of a wild range deflect a trifle as they cross the boundary line of Fentress and Overton, lived for many years two families named Waldron and Jarvis. An unintelligible feud had marred their intercourse for time out of mind, until about a year ago, when the head of the last mentioned family died. After this occurrence old troubles were apparently buried on both sides, and a friendly intercourse was established between the late rivals. This continued for many months, and until a Saturday night, when one of the Jarvises, a young man of twenty-two, and while intoxicated, made some sneering remark about one of the Waldrons, impeaching his courage. The member of the once rival family referred to heard of the other's remarks, with many additions and aggravations, and his ire was of course great. Two days after he sent a friend to young Jarvis, who was at work on a bench near by, to say to him that as he (Jarvis) did not consider him a courageous man, he might have the pleasure of testing his bravery with any weapon he might choose. Young Jarvis was too proud to retract the language which had been uttered under the influence of liquor, and he accordingly sent back word to the other that he would meet him four days from that time in what is known as the Run, where they could settle the matter with rifles at one hundred and fifty yards.

Both men had been in the rebel army, and were accounted splendid marksmen, and in their hunting excursions through the neighboring wilds few could equal their sure aim, or bring down the game at longer range.

It was on a damp, cold, dreary Friday morning that the two young men, each accompanied by a friend, took their way to the Run, a straight, narrow valley, on one side of which ran a rapid stream, overhung with wild, black crags, with here and there stubborn bushes shooting out, while above a dark, gloomy forest surged and moaned in the fitful gusts which now and then swept over the scene. A few rods from the banks of the torrent was a straight, unobstructed piece of ground for five hundred seet. Here the two men were to meet. A drizzling rain had fallen for hours, and the scene through the valley and out over the surrounding hills, with their wooded sides, was dismal with clinging mist and pattering rain.

The seconds paced off the distance, the two men were placed with their backs toward each other, the pieces were loaded, and to the shouted one, two, three, given by one of the seconds standing upon a high rock to one side and about midway between the two combatants, they turned and fired. Jarvis was wounded through the fleshy part of the left arm, while his bullet whistled savagely just above his antagonist's head. "Are you satisfied," said the wounded man's second to the other's friend. "Waldron wants another shot," was the reply.

A stern, savage smile lighted up the features of young Jarvis as his arm was bound up to staunch the blood, but he said not a word. The rifles were loaded again, and once more to the shouted signal the two men wheeled and fired. The reports were almost simultaneous. Waldron ran forward a few steps, staggered, reeled, and fell into the arms of his friend, bleeding and senseless. He was shot through the heart.

Jarvis went slowly home, saddled his horse, and telling his family that he was going to Monticello, left the country.

The Emperor of Brazil in the Paraguayan War.

An American gentleman who arrived from Brazil last week has given us some items of information, which have not appeared in any public correspondence.

From this gentleman we gain some facts concerning the action of the Emperor of Brazil in the war, which confirm the high estimate placed upon that monarch by all travellers in the empire. That he is a man of high intellectual endowments, fine moral character and of wide views, was generally conceded, but that he would prove himself a great and firm statesman in the difficult and trying times of war, many doubted. But the events of the last few months have proved him to be this. The question vital to Brazil was the complete liberation from every obstacle to the navigation of the waters that flow from her interior provinces past Paraguay to the ocean. This was solemnly guarantied by the father of the present "Supreme" of Paraguay; and years of peaceful navigation of those rivers confirmed the sacred obligation. The vital question with Lopez was to retain his well-trained Guaranis in ignorance. superstition, and in political and commercial bondage. The monthly, and oftentimes weekly, sight of Brazilian steamers and other vessels did not contribute to the supremacy of the Dictator in the hearts of his people. Hence the conflict; hence his undaunted purpose.

Six months ago Brazil began, through certain journals of the opposition, to show unmistakable signs of weariness of the war. The empire had to furnish the lion's share of funds and troops: the allies had been before the impregnable Humaita not quite as long as France and England before Sebastopol, and had made no impression. The public funds went down; gold went up; business stagnated. There was the same feeling which pervaded the North during a part of 1864. Peace was freely talked of, but peace was only to be obtained by compromising with Lopez. Public journals and private gatherings talked against the government, and when it was ascertained that it was the Brazilian Executive who stood in the way, the murmurs grew deep and loud.

He was pressed, in view of every consideration of philanthropy and business, to abandon the war, as a failure, and to make peace on any terms. The Emperor then descended from his usual reticence and impersonality (for his constitutional powers are quite limited,) and said to "all whom it may concern" that Brazil was fighting neither for ambition nor for conquest, but for a principle; for solemn treaty obligations, for the opening of the river La Plata from Brazil to the ocean. That he would make no peace on any other basis, and that if Brazil, for herself and for the nineteenth century, did not come squarely up to that issue, he would avail himself of his constitutional right of abdication, and would retire from the country forever.

When Humaita was passed, Rio de Janeiro and the whole empire was thrilled by the achievement of the Brazilian monitor fleet, but the first and highest object of their praises and vivas was the Emperor, whom they called their prophet.—N. Y. Post.

A YEAR'S WORK IN LONDON HOSPITALS.—Fourteen hospitals in London give annual relief to 33,000 in-patients, and to more than 350,000 out-patients. Taking the gross total, nearly a fifth of the 3,000,000 inhabitants of London receive relief from public charity, supposing the same patient to be relieved but once in the year.

Anecdotes of Ben Wade.

[From the Chillicothe Gazette.]

The following we derive from a prominent citizen of Jefferson, a fellow church member with Joshua R. Giddings, and they are authentic:

About the time Mr. Wade opened a law office in Jefferson, a traveling preacher stopped at that village and delivered a lecture on the sinfulness of slavery. Mr. Giddings and the pastor of the church, of which he was a member, deemed this highly wicked and incendiary. And to counteract any evil which the abolition lecture might have done, these two men drew up a plan for a society which was to hold stated meetings for the purpose of proving the divinity of slavery from the Bible. In canvassing for members to search the Scriptures for this purpose, they called at Wade's office, who, after hearing them patiently, remarked: "If I was an infidel, and thought it desirable to make the people believe the Bible a fable, I would begin not by openly discrediting it, but I would organize just such societies as you propose, and set out to prove that the God of the Bible was a being that sanctioned slavery and all its iniquities."

The pastor spent a few moments in deep thought, and exclaimed: "You are right, Mr. Wade; I now see this thing in a different light; I will have nothing further to do with it." Not long after this the scales fell from Mr. Giddings' eyes, and he, too, became an apostle of liberty.

While Wade and Giddings were law partners, they sold a horse to a preacher and took his note. Mr. G. made the trade, and drove a hard bargain, although he belonged to the same church with the preacher. They shortly after dissolved partnership and divided the notes, Mr. G. assorting them out, and somehow the poor and doubtful were counted into Mr. W's. half. Mr. W. made no objection to this, doubtless thinking this would afford a good opportunity to exercise some of that large hearted practical benevolence for which he is so noted. The preacher's note fell to Mr. Wade, and when it came due he was informed by Mr. G. that Mr. W. had bought the note. On calling to pay it, Mr. Wade asked him how much money he had, and was informed "just enough to pay this note and get back home on." Mr. Wade replied, "well, in the first place, had I been selling the horse, my conscience would not have allowed me to exact of you more than he was worth, and in the second place, you preachers have a hard time of it, and I am the last man that would have a desire for your money. Here is your note, I make you a present of it." The minister was effected to tears, and remarked to a brother member shortly after, while relating the occurrence, "that man's rough exterior covers a noble heart."

AUTOGRAPHS.—A sale of autographs took place in London last month. Among the remarkable lots were the following, with the prices at which they sold: Letter of Lord Bacon, 3 guineas; letter of the Chevalier Bayard, said to be the only one known, £10 5s.; letter of Calvin, £11; signature and short note of Benvenuto Cellini, £6; letter signed by Cranmer, £4 2s. 6d.; signature of John Hampden, £2; signature of Algernon Sidney, £3 13s. 6d.; letter of Sir Isaac Newton, £12; nine letters of Henry Benedict, Cardinal of York, last of the Stuarts, giving some interesting particulars of his brother the Young Pretender, his intrigues, his tippling propensities, &c., £12; six letters of Voltaire, £5 8s.

Death of Alderman James L. Sutherland—Coroner's Inquest.

The death of Alderman James L. Sutherland, of the Tenth ward, which occurred Thursday night or Friday morning, was a very sudden and unexpected one. Mr. S. had been in ill health for some time, but recently was thought to be improving, and the day before his death, as well as for several days previous thereto, he had been much better than usual and attending to his business regularly. He occupied an office on Diamond street, near Cherry alley, and slept in an adjoining room. He retired to bed Thursday evening between nine and ten o'clock, and about eight o'clock the next morning Mr. J. N. McClowry, who occupies the office with him, went to the place and on looking into Mr. Sutherland's sleeping room, at the rear of the office, saw the Alderman lying on his bed, with his clothing on, and apparently dead. He was lying partly on his face, with one hand doubled under him. Going up to him, Mr. McClowry found him quite dead and cold. The face, neck and breast were very much discolored.

Coroner Clawson was notified, impanneled a jury, and, after viewing the body, adjourned the inquest until half-past four o'clock, in order to allow a post mortem examination to be made.

The jury convened at the hour appointed, when Dr. George Dr. McCook, Sr., who made the post mortem, testified as follows:

Dr. George McCook, Sr., sworn—I made a post mortem examination of the deceased and am satisfied that he died of apoplexy. On examination of the brain found all the vessels destended with blood. Apoplexy occurs in sober and in intemperate men. Am quite positive that nothing else caused his death.

This was all the testimony of any importance taken in the case, and the jury rendered the following verdict:

"That the said James L. Sutherland came to his death on the night of 30th of April, or the morning of the first of May, in the Tenth ward, Pittsburgh, and that his death was caused by apoplexy."

Deceased was about thirty-six years of age and unmarried. He boarded with his brother on Fourth street, and slept in the room attached to his office. For several years he has been quite extensively known, and has taken a prominent part in certain political movements. He was a member of Company I, 12th Regiment, under Colonel Campbell, and subsequently belonged to Battery "H," Independent Light Artillery, (Nevin's). His many friends will regret his sudden and untimely departure from their midst.

Explosion and Fire.

Between six and seven o'clock yesterday morning an explosion and fire occurred at the patent roofing manufactory of Mr. James McCune, on Mulberry alley, between Carson and Allegheny streets. It appears that the valve of the boiler, in which the gas tar was prepared, became disordered in some manner, and the melted tar boiled over into the furnace fire. The flames of the burning tar communicated with the gas in the pipe through which the raw tar was pumped into the boiler from a large tank under the ground some distance away. Through this pipe the fire was almost instantly conveyed to the tank mentioned, and an explosion of the tank followed. The burning tar was scattered through the building, and the latter, a long wooden structure, was speedily in flames. The alarm was communicated from box 62 Independence engine house, in the Ninth ward, to which the entire fire department responded promptly, but before the fire could be extinguished, the building was much damaged. At the time of the explosion two men named George Barrington and Henry Serrel were standing near the tank, and were both injured. Serrel received only slight injuries. Barrington was quite seriously hurt, receiving severe burns on his face, arms and breast. His injuries are not thought to be dangerous. The loss by the fire will reach $800, and there is no insurance.

Coroner's Inquests Held in April, 1868.

During the month of April Coroner Clawson held inquests as follows;

April 6th, female infant found in the Seventh ward; 8th, Mattias Field, killed by coal cars at Braddock's Fields; 10th, Lance Appleby, died suddenly of epilepsy; 12th, William Siebereisen, accidentally shot in Duquesne borough; 14th, Charles Gerberding, fell down a flight of stairs in a saloon on Pennsylvania avenue and broke his neck; 15th, Enoch McIntyre, sudden death from natural causes, 16th, B. Rauenbuchler, heart disease, Birmingham; 17th, Henry Strotthoff, suicide at East Liberty; 21st, Joseph Moung, infant, drowned in a rain barrel on Troy Hill, Allegheny; 21st, Jas. Fleming, Magee street, from natural causes; 21st, John Michael, killed at Keeling's coal works, Lower St. Clair township; 26th, Jno. Murphy, killed on Connellsville Railroad at Braddock's Field; 27th, James Berry, killed by Citizens' Passenger Railway; 28th, Charles Kehrein, suicide at Braddock's Field; 29th, Martin Connor, drowned in the Monongahela river; 30th, Michael Cox, killed by coal cars at Port Pery. Total 16.

City Mortality.

Dr. A. G. McCandless, Physician to the Board of Health, reports the following interments in the city of Pittsburgh, from April 19th to April 26th, 1868:

Males.......	16	White......	26	Total..... 29
Females....	13	Colored....	3

Diseases—Adults: Consumption, 9; Inflammation of the Lungs, 1; Natural Causes, 1; Concussion of Brain, 1; Fracture of Limb, 1; Old Age, 1; Chronic Bronchitis, 1; Cancer, 1; Puerperal Fever, 1—17. Children—Scrofulous Meningitis, 2; Inanition, 2; Spasms, 1; Typhoid Fever, 1; Premature Birth, 1; Apthous Stimacace, 1; General Debility, 1; Rupture, 1; Hypertrophy of Heart, 1; Croup, 1—12.

Of the above there were: Under one year, 9; from one to two, 1; two to five, 1, five to ten 1; fifteen to twenty, 2; twenty to thirty, 2; thirty to forty, 7; forty to fifty, 1; fifty to sixty, 2; sixty to seventy, 2; eighty to ninety, 1.

Another Boy Drowned.

About five o'clock last evening Patrick Finnerty, a little boy about seven years of age, was drowned in the Allegheny river, near the Point. The little fellow was playing on an oil boat, when he lost his footing and fell overboard. There were several small children on the boat with him at the time, but none of them large enough to give him any assistance, and before assistance arrived he disappeared. The body had not been recovered at ten o'clock last night. The father of the child resides on Duquesne Way, near the Point.

A Row at the Circus.—A disgraceful row occurred at the circus in East Birmingham, Thursday night. About the time the entertainment closed a party of "roughs" raised a row with the doorkeeper, who called the showmen to his assistance, when a regular free fight ensued. Bricks and cobble stones were thrown through the crowd promiscuously and more than a few persons were severely injured. While the row was in progress some thief slipped into the dressing room and stole a trunk containing the wardrobe of one of the actors.

Another False Pretense Case.—Mrs. Gallaher, a widow, was charged before Alderman Thomas, on oath of James Graham, with obtaining goods under false pretence. Graham is a grocer in the Seventh ward, and he alleges that the accused obtained goods from him to the amount of thirty dollars by certain false representations. Mrs. Gallaher was arrested and held to bail for her appearance at Court.

Trial of the Steam Engine Independence.

The new Independence Steam Fire Engine was tested yesterday afternoon, preparatory to accepting it from the hands of the manufacturers, the Amoskeag, Manchester, N. H., Manufacturing Company. The machine, which is a very beautiful one, of elaborate workmanship and splendid finish, was first tested at the corner of Market and Water streets. Owing to the fact that the Lowry plug there was out of order, refusing to supply a necessary quantity of water, and also because the owners of freight on the wharf prevented the throwing of water on the ground usually used for testing purposes, thus compelling the throwing against the wind up Market street, the trial was not satisfactory. The trial resulted in throwing a solid stream through a 1¼ inch nozzle the distance of 262 feet. Not satisfied with this result, the engine was taken to the corner of Liberty and Morris street, and with an ordinary plug was tried with very satisfactory result. Through a 1⅛ inch nozzle a solid stream was cast 272 feet, and through the same sized nozzles two heavy solid streams were thrown to the great distance of 225½ feet. This extraordinary result of the capacity of the elegant new steamer gave it proud place amongst the best throwers of the city, and the Committee at once accepted it. The engine worked smoothly and with scarcely any jarring of machinery. It will at once go into service. We congratulate our friends in the Ninth ward on the possession of such a creditable steamer, as it reflects much credit to their public spirit and enterprise.

No Smoking Allowed.

A few evenings since three prominent business men of the city were on board car No. 4 of the Citizens Passenger Railway, and being the only passengers they concluded to take a smoke. The rules of the Company positively forbid smoking either on or in the cars, and the conductor, Harry Palmer, who, by the way, is one of the most obliging on the road, politely requested them not to smoke. They insisted upon doing so, whereupon the entire party were ejected from the car. One of the smokers feeling himself aggrieved, appealed to the law to console his wounded dignity. He made information before Alderman Taylor, charging the conductor with assault and battery. The conductor was arrested and after a hearing dismissed, the Alderman, however, reserving his decision until today, when the conductor will doubtless be finally discharged and the prosecutor required to pay the costs.

Monthly Report of the Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph.

Mr. S. T. Paisley, Superintendent of the Fire Alarm and Police Telegraph, furnishes the following report of fires and alarms during the month of April: There were ten alarms during the month. One hundred and sixty-nine blows were struck on the great bell in sounding alarms, and two hundred and forty blows in striking the hours. The most serious fire of the month was that the Fort Pitt Works, on the 22d inst. The total loss during the month was $2,230, and on this there was an insurance of $1,900. Fifty-three police messages were sent and received.

Assaulted a Woman.

A. W. Holtzman, residing in the Fifth ward, Allegheny, yesterday made information before Alderman McMasters, charging David Davis with assault and battery. It appears that Davis, who is a boy about eighteen years of age, resides with his father in a house adjoining that of the prosecutor, and the families, as neighbors sometimes do, quarreled about some very trifling matter, since when an ill feeling has existed between them. Yesterday morning, the prosecutor alleges, Davis attacked Mrs. Holtzman and struck her with a hatchet. Davis was arrested and held to bail for his appearance at Court.

Larceny of Harness.—John E. Morgan, proprietor of the Farmers' Hotel, at the corner of Ferry and Fourth streets, made information before the Mayor, yesterday, charging James Marion with the larceny of a bridle and line valued at three dollars. It is alleged that quite a number of articles have been stolen from the stable connected with the hotel recently, and on Thursday night a man was placed on watch to catch the thief. He concealed himself in the stable, and had not been there long when he observed the accused come in and take the articles mentioned. He was arrested and after a hearing held for Court.

Choice Groceries.—The Diamond Front Grocery store of Messrs. McBride & George, Federal street, Allegheny, has recently been supplied with a very large and judiciously assorted stock of choice groceries, embracing teas, coffees, sugars, syrups, spices, canned and dried fruits, and all table and housekeeping goods. Wholesale dealers will find that they can purchase to decided advantage at this well managed house, while retail patrons are supplied with groceries at very reasonable prices. Call in and be convinced.

New Music.—We have received from Messrs. H. Kleber & Bro., Pittsburgh, a copy of a sweet and charming new ballad entitled "The Land Beyond the Sea." The words are from the gifted pen of our fellow citizen, James M. Macrum, Esq., the music from the opera of 'Torquato Tasso," arranged by W. H. Everson, Esq., and dedicated to Mrs. N. G. Macrum. The ballad will certainly and at once enter into the catalogue of popular current music, a position its merits demand. Messrs. Kleber & Co. have it for sale.

The Circus.—Thayer & Noyes' Great Combination Circus and Menagerie, will give two exhibitious in Allegheny Ciiy to-day, this afternoon and evening. Monday it will open on the Red Lion lot in this city, and remain one week. This is said to be one of the largest and best shows now traveling. The menagerie comprises a greater variety of living curiosities than any other show in the country, and the circus comprises some of the best talent in the arena. Thoy will doubtless do a thriving business here.

Disorderly House.—Annie Keeny was charged with keeping a disorderly house on oath of Morris McCue, before Alderman Butler, yesterday. The accused resides in the Sixth ward, and it is alleged keeps a very disorderly house, where persons of lewd habits frequent, greatly to the annoyance of all good people in the neighborhood. The female was arrested, and after a hearing, in default of the required bail, was committed to jail to answer at Court.

A Cutlery Business.—James Hughes yesterday made information before Alderman Strain, charging William Jones with the larceny of a lot of cutlery. It appears that Jones was acting as agent for the prosecutor in the sale of hardware and cutlery, and that he appropriated a quantity of the goods to his own use. He was arrested and held for a hearing.

After Him.—Officer Brunot of the Mayor's Police, yesterday started to Beaver after Baldwin, the man who played the sharp game which we noticed in the GAZETTE of yesterday, by running a raft of lumber away from the officers, the Mayor having been informed that he had arrived there with the raft.

Illegal Liquor Selling.—D. Jones made information before the Mayor yesterday charging Bernard Smith with illegal liquor selling. The accused resides in the 7th Ward. A warrant was issued for his arrest.

Fresh Evidence of Skill.

Deafness has been increasing on me for the last ten years, so that I could not hear a clock tick. I applied to Dr. Aborn, 134 Smithfield street, and after eight days' treatment I can now hear a watch tick distinctly, and am still improving.

I, SYLVANUS J. ZENTZ, suffered with a sore eye for twelve years. I applied to Dr. Aborn, and in a few days was restored to sight.
S. J. ZENTZ.

After long suffering from deafness, I applied to Dr. Aborn and I believe he has permanently effected a cure after a few applications. To persons troubled with diseases of the Ear, I heartily recommend Dr. Aborn, of 134 Smithfield street.

Pure Country Milk.

A can of milk of 400 degrees test by the lactometer, which we understand to be exactly pure milk—no more and no less—was kindly sent to us from the Country Milk Company's Depot, corner of Fourth and Ross streets, Wm. Thomas agent. The only instrument in our possession for determining the truth of the reported purity of this milk was our palate, which, however, is so unused to pure milk that we can only testify that since we lived on a farm, we have not tasted a lacteal beverage so rich and luscious as this. It is manifestly a stranger to pump or hydrant, and with very little coaxing would resolve itself into butter or cheese. We advise our readers to see to it if this "Milk Company" is not the best cow in town.

The River Dale Summer Resort.

The above well known summer resort, which is charmingly situated in one of the most pleasant, healthful and romantic curves on the bank of the beautiful Ohio, about ten miles distance from the city, at Haysville station on the line of the P. Ft. W. & C. R. R., will be opened shortly for the summer season, under the auspices of Mr. M. B. Miller, and will be so conducted and managed as to rank high amongst the most popular places of recreation. It is surrounded with springs of crystal water of medicinal quality, together with flower gardens, parks, promenades, gymnasium, swings, tenpin alleys and all the other auxiliaries to the eejoyment of guests. The services of a steward of many years' experience in first-class hotels have been secured for the season, and aided by all necessary help, the patrons can depend on receiving every attention conducive to their pleasure. The terms are very reasonable, and we know of no place which offers such attractions to those who would secure all the pleasures of the country retreat and yet be within a few minutes ride of our bustling city, the trains passing very often every day. Mr. Miller, the proprietor, can be seen at the jewelry store of Wattles & Sheafer, No. 101 Fifth street, from 4:15 to 5 o'clock P. M. every day, of whom full information may be obtained.

Railway Accident Incident.

It is an actual fact that on a train of cars recently wrecked the only thing saved from damage and destruction was a large Saratoga trunk which, on close inspection, proved to contain the wardrobe of a newly married bride on her bridal tour. This trunk was examined closely, and need we say that it turned out to be one of Liebler's—everybody knows Joseph Liebler, the proprietor of the premium trunk factory, No. 104 Wood street—manufacture. It was made to stand rough handling, and it effectually accomplished that purpose. Liebler manufactures out of the best material, employs the best workmen and sells at the cheapest prices. He deals in all sorts of trunks, carpet sacks, valises, &c., &c. Give him a call for anything in his line.

"POOR TOM'S A' COLD."

How warm soe'er the genial sun
May look in kindness on the earth,
In Tom Jones' veins no cheering warmth
Dispels the gloomy sorrow of his soul.
Dyspepsia, like a goblin, hunts him down.
Ague, grim chamberlain, lights him to bed.
While Dullness, Vertigo and Headache dire
With fiercer aches combine to make him groan.
Hearken, Thomas, to instrnction
For all thy ills a remedy is found,
A panacea, certain, pleasant, sure,

A wondrous Tonic, made by Dr. Drake.

We presume "poor Tom's" case is not worse than hundreds who are cured daily by this wonderful medicine.
